BLIND AND YET SEES.

BOSTON MAN WHO WOULDN'T RECOVER HIS SIGHT IF HE COULD. Marcus Josselva, an Itinerant Merchant

He Likes and Avoids All Obstructions A stone blind man whose vision is perfect, A man who lost his eyesight thirty-five years ago, and wouldn't recover it if he could. A man who says seeing is quite unnecessary and a hindrance to the full enjoyment of life. A man who gets along in the world much better and makes more money than many persons with two good eyes. Many of the readers of The Globe have doubtless seen around the south and west ends of Boston a thick set, medium sized man apparently about 40 years of age, with oval face, blonde mustache and genial expression, walking along with confident step, carrying a cane and dragging behind him a black valise on little wheeks. He keeps to the right of other pedestrians, turning out for all obstacles, picking his way easily through dense crowds, and when he comes to a crossing, picking up his valise and carrying it to the other side, where he sets it down and continnes his course. At the first glance no one would think he was totally blind, but if you look sharply and notice the peculiar carriage of his head, and especially if you see the incessant motion of his restless eyeballs, you will be convinced that the physical sense of sight

This man is Marcus H. Josselva. He lives at 184 Eustis street in neat and tastefully furnished apartments. Every week day morning he starts out with his valise to visit his customers. He has his regular routes and calls on each of his 1,000 patrons regularly once a month. His business, which has grown to its present proportions as the result of twenty years' bard and systematic work, is the selling of needles, thread, tape, safety pins, corset laces and "such like" articles so dear and so necessary to the feminine heart. He derives a snug little income from his busi-

Mr. Joseelyn, having lost his sight when he was only 5 years old, has not a very vivid recollection of how external objects look to persons with sight. He says he remembers the appearance of the caterpfilar crawling along the ground, and also how the water looked that was charmed by the wheels of the farryticat. Of color he has no clear conception. Besides being a good business man Mr Joselyn is a fine musician, playing the pinno with exquisite feeling. He is what Spiritunlists call "a sensitive," and perceives a reat many things by a finer souss than that of heating or seeing. SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

Scaly, Itching Skin Disease With End less Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If 1 had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIE If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $70.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my sheaf in a spot not insper than a cent. It stread rapidly all over my body and got under my nalls. The scales would drop off of me all the time and my suffering was endies, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was isprosy, some ring worm, paoriasis, etc. I took ... and ... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors and no cure. I cannot praise the CERGURA. and His Valise on Wheels-Goes Where doctors and no cure. I cannot praise the CIPECURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as lear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of hem was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICUEA RISOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICUEA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $20,00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Paorlasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases", but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while but to no purpose. I am all well, I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Anything more that you want to know write me, or any the who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

TRUTH IN DEATH.

But He Regretted It, and Added a Falsehood at Last,

We had a man named Burrows in our mining camp, and he was without doubt the most notorious liar Nevada will ever shelter. His fame as a liar spread for a hundred miles around, and men used to stop at our camp to get a look at him. He wasn't a wicked man, and he had no malice about him, but he was a natural born liar. He lied about his father, his mother, his wife, brothers, sisters, and everybody else, and for every hour in the day he had a new talsebood. He had a claim of his own and was fairly industrious, and so we had no excuse to drive him out, although his lies were continually kicking up ill feeling among the men. One day a lot of earth and rock caved in on him and inflicted fatal injuries, and a number of us knocked off work to be with him in his last moments. You would have thought the shadow of death would have brought a change of sentiment, but it did not. Lying there with only as hour of life left to him, he told us that he had been a pirate on the Pacific and where he had buried a large amount of plunder. We all knew that he was from Ohio and had never seen any ocean, but he stuck to it. One of the men finally felt it his duty to say?

"Burrows, you have only a short time to live. You had best spend that in preparing for eternity."

Tvo alius been good," he quietly replied. "Yes, but you are an awful liar, you

"Yes, I suppose so. I've told a million of them, haven't I'm "No doubt of it."

"And every one has been laid up agin me?"
"Very likely." "And my chance is rather slim?"

"Well, boys, it's my way, and I can't change at this late day. Just as that cave in ame I struck a nugget as big as my head. It would value up a clean $15,000. If you'll be kind enough to pull it out and sell it and send the cash to my wife I'll die feeling better." He went off soon after that, and we said to each other that he had given us the greatest No one took his claim, which was accounted a poor one, and it lay for three months before one of the boys dug into it one day for the ptckax buried and forgotten. He hadn't got the pick when he came across a lump of gold which balanced $13,290 in coin, and every shilling of the morey was sent on to the widow, as directed. It got there to find that there was no widow. but six months later went to a sister. In his dving hour Burrows told the truth about his

find, but, alas! he repented of it, and lied

The effect of the habitual use of tobacco on the health is the subject of an interesting and significant paper by Dr. F. H. Bosunth, published in The Medical Record of this city. The writer calls attention to the fact that the Angle-Saxon races have been using tobacco for smoking and chewing purposes during the past four centuries. They contracted the habit from a race which, as far as history and tradition teach us, were remarkable for their vigor of body and mind as well, and as far as we know, were an unusually long lived people. In the time that we have been using the weed there is no evidence to show that the race has in any way deteriorated; but on the contrary, it is abundantly shown that the average duration of life has increased

There is no evidence to show that in this time the race has been more subject to disease, but rather that they are less so. There is no evidence to show that the race has lost anything in its intellectual activity; but, on the confrary, it has been a time of most marvelous fecundity in all that is great in litera ture. Dr. Bosunth, while not advocating the use of tobacco, is opposed to the wholesale denunciation of "the weed" maintained by some extremists, his experience showing that as a general thing it is innocuous, and in cases where its use is at all baneful the sufferer is himself conscious of the fact, and controls the remedy. Briefly, the object of the essay is not a pica for the use of tobacco, but simply to suggest whether we had not best aban ion the idea that it is a drug whose use is pernicions in every way to body, mind and morals and rather to the the view that it is one of God's good gifts to man. - American

To Prevent Easting.

A correspondent writing to The Artisan gives a simple plan of preventing sheet iron stacks from rusting. He says that if before raising the new chimney, each section, as it comes from the shop, be coated with common coal tar, then filled with light shaving and fired, it will resist rust for an indefinit period, rendering future painting nunecess In proof of this be cites a chimney which was erected in 1866, treated as above de scribed, and is today as bright as it was the day it was raised, without having a particl of paint applied since. The theory by while he accounts for this result is that the conduct is literally burned into the fron, closing th peres and rendering it rust proof.
